Dear Recruiting Manager,

I would like to apply for the Software Engineer position because of my desire to bring and develop my passion for computer science outside of the classroom. I am currently a sophomore undergraduate student studying Computer Science at Stony Brook University. I have always been interested in technology in addition to solving unique, challenging problems that made the decision indisputable when choosing my major. Hence, I am very interested in applying and developing my skills in this position and learning from experienced leaders.

My interest in becoming a software engineering intern is reflected in my coursework and work experience. As a sophomore student, I have knowledge of backend development, specifically in Java on object-oriented programming and data structures. Through this, it aided me in creating my first project, the smart mirror, which displays widgets in an in-mirror display such as time, weather, and the local news. After creating this, it strengthened my passion even further where I began to experiment in frontend web development. By learning and using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript I began to design my own website which is still a work in progress. Moreover, during my previous employment at a tutor, I developed strong interpersonal skills, which would help immensely among a design team. I look forward to applying to be a valuable member at Justworks and making an impact as a Software Engineer by solving problems in API in particular.

Thank you for the opportunity to apply for this position. Please accept this letter and the attached resume as my sincerest interest in this position. I look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Best regards,

Nicholas Leong
